Auxilio Mutuo
El Gran Hospital de Puerto Rico

COOKIE POLICY

Effective date: October 2026

1. What Are Cookies?

Cookies are small files or identifiers stored on or read by a browser or device. Similar technologies, such as pixels, tags, and local storage, may perform related functions.

2. How We Use These Technologies

The Site may use the following categories of cookies and similar technologies:

- Strictly necessary cookies: support security, navigation, essential preferences, and Site operation.
- Functional cookies: remember user selections and improve the experience.
- Analytics cookies: help us understand Site use, performance, and errors.
- Communications or marketing cookies: are used only when authorized and employed by the Hospital.

3. Information Collected

These technologies may collect IP addresses, device or browser identifiers, pages visited, links selected, approximate interaction times, referring websites, and user preferences.

These technologies must not be used to transmit protected health information to third parties without the required legal basis, applicable agreements, and safeguards.

4. Third-Party Services

Some hosting, security, video, mapping, analytics, or other service providers may place or read their own cookies or similar technologies. Their processing of information is also governed by their respective policies.

The Hospital will maintain an up-to-date inventory of active technologies and their purposes.

5. Your Preferences

When entering the Site, you may manage nonessential categories through the available preference mechanism. You may also block or delete cookies in your browser settings.

Strictly necessary cookies cannot be disabled through the preferences panel when they are essential to Site operation and security.