1 What cookies are

Cookies are small files or identifiers stored on or read by a browser or device. Similar technologies, such as pixels, tags, and local storage, may perform related functions.

2 How we use them

- Strictly necessary cookies for security, navigation, essential preferences, and Site operation.
- Functional cookies that remember selections and improve the experience.
- Analytics cookies that help us understand Site use, performance, and errors.
- Communications or marketing cookies only when authorized and used by the Hospital.

3 Data collected

These technologies may collect IP address, device or browser identifiers, pages visited, links selected, approximate time, referring site, and preferences. They must not be used to transmit protected health information to third parties without the required legal basis, agreement, and safeguards.

4 Third parties

Some hosting, security, video, mapping, analytics, or other service providers may place or read their own technologies. Their processing is also governed by their policies. The Hospital shall maintain an up-to-date inventory of active technologies and their purposes.

5 Your preferences

When entering the Site, you may manage nonessential categories through the available preference mechanism. You may also block or delete cookies in your browser. Strictly necessary cookies cannot be disabled through the panel when they are essential to the operation and security of the Site.
